In a time of transition, in a world churning with rebellion, tradition gives Redskins a feeling of belonging to something permanent. Traditions give today's 'Skins a oneness with the 14,912 graduates who have passed through North's doors. Transitions, the reforms enacted during their three-year tenure at North, give a uniqueness to the members of each class to leave North Side.

Students enter North deeply concerned with social and moral values and eager to transform their parents' world. Yet they are reluctant to surrender the link with the past that tradition affords them. For it is on the past that the foundations of the future must be laid, as the path of youth goes on . . .

The North Side Marching Redskins march down Fricke Avenue during an early morning practice in preparation for the Veterans' Day parade.

Junior Lynn Doughty finds numerous uses for the Northerner. She discovers it not only serves as a hat, but can also be read.

Dean William Mitchell discusses problems on the school grounds with Sergeant Robert Walda. Sergeant Walda dealt with student problems both in and out of school.

As renovation continues, work begins on the 130 corridor. A workman installs wiring for the new lighting system.

Varsity cheerleaders from North and South gather at half-time of that game to share Cokes and discuss common interests.

Seniors Rick Davidson, Andy Meehan, junior Sandi Rodgers, and senior Jim Schaeffer pool brains in an attempt to solve a difficult math problem.

Tradition and Transition,
the path of youth goes on / Student Life

What was it that came between our friendship
Was it summer,
Or just the distance?
We knew from the start
that as more than friends
we would only hurt each other.
(Maybe we did anyway)
Now the leaves are gone
and you are so far away
I cannot remember your face.
Where are you now, my summer friend?
Have you found in winter what I have found
Or are you as lonely as I once was in that summer before this winter came.

Senior Bob Andrews catches sophomore Terri Holom unaware as she searches for a book in the library.

A sophomore covered with shaving cream is forced to retreat up the flag pole on the first day of school.

The pains taken for the sake of sports are reflected in the face of junior cross-country runner Dan Jenkins.

Sorry guys, these cute chicks aren't available. The Powder Puff cheerleaders are senior men Jerry Dahm, Bob Andrews, Peege Ach-enbach, Tom Wermuth, Scott Hettinger, and Steve Battell.

At the command of the coach to think of the game only, the faces of the junior Powder Puff team express fears of the contest to start in minutes.

Kissing you under the mistletoe and all the other affections inspections and directions
we shared a year ago.

Sophomores Jewel Boyd, Joanne Burke, Cindy Ackerman, Elaine Menges, Bonnie Gaunt, Pam McLeod, Linda Bloom, and Cheryl Mosher show their spirit in a skit for the varsity football team.

Sophomore Joanne Burke shares private thoughts on the phone.

On his mini-bike, junior Dave Atkinson escapes to the country.

North had numerous soul dances. At the year's first dance, sophomore Janice Watson "shakes it."

On a shopping spree, juniors Linda Kruse, Patti Kipling, and Elaine Carlson check out the latest in a sounds store.

Mistletoe is an innocent excuse for senior Jack Woodruff and sophomore Rosie Regedanz to get sweeters.

Fresh snow and an undersized sled bring out the kid in senior Bobby Hinga.

North's answer to Jean-Claude Killy, senior Jerry Dahm, is caught in action on the treacherous slopes of the nearby riverbank.

"Gimme two," says senior Gabe Shaheen at an after-game hangout.

Junior Boys' Cheerblock members Bill Werling and Neal Inscoe proudly display the remains of an ancient Redskin which laughs mockingly at opponents.

Coach By Hey delivers an inspirational pep talk to tired team members at half-time.

Through all the crowded gymnasiums
In a thousand steaming locker rooms
Right now, all over this land
It's happening.
The teams prepare to pay a commitment.
They have no time to pick or to choose
Only one purpose—
To search for and find victory.
Every time they pull themselves off that hardwood
as those before have done
It is for us.
They jump the jumps, sweat the fouls,
sink the shots, slap the backs,
warm the bench, count the seconds
Because they must for us.
It is what they have set out to do.
That is why as school ends and new goals begin
They can never be completely forgotten.

Music frees the souls of Redskins. A student expresses himself in sound at a rock concert.

At work, Pat Lockwood flips hamburgers. Many students held after-school jobs and many more searched for employment.

Football is the name of the game played by senior Sue St John. Frisbees and footballs whizz around the school on warm spring days.

It's a time of frisbees and footballs
in half-green grass
A time of black bow ties and red carnations in one-night dream worlds
A time when your soul begs to be free from the one-two pace—
But your practical side says, make a dollar.
To break away, to share all this with someone else for a moment seems so hard at times.
But then the rush stops
it's time to pick a sad tune think of winter for a moment.
Then past all the rules and pink, yellow, green, blue and white slips —
the whole funky trip.
Put it in the trash can, Jackson.
then on to the summer sun.

Patty Pion shows her concern as she takes time out to watch during a football game.

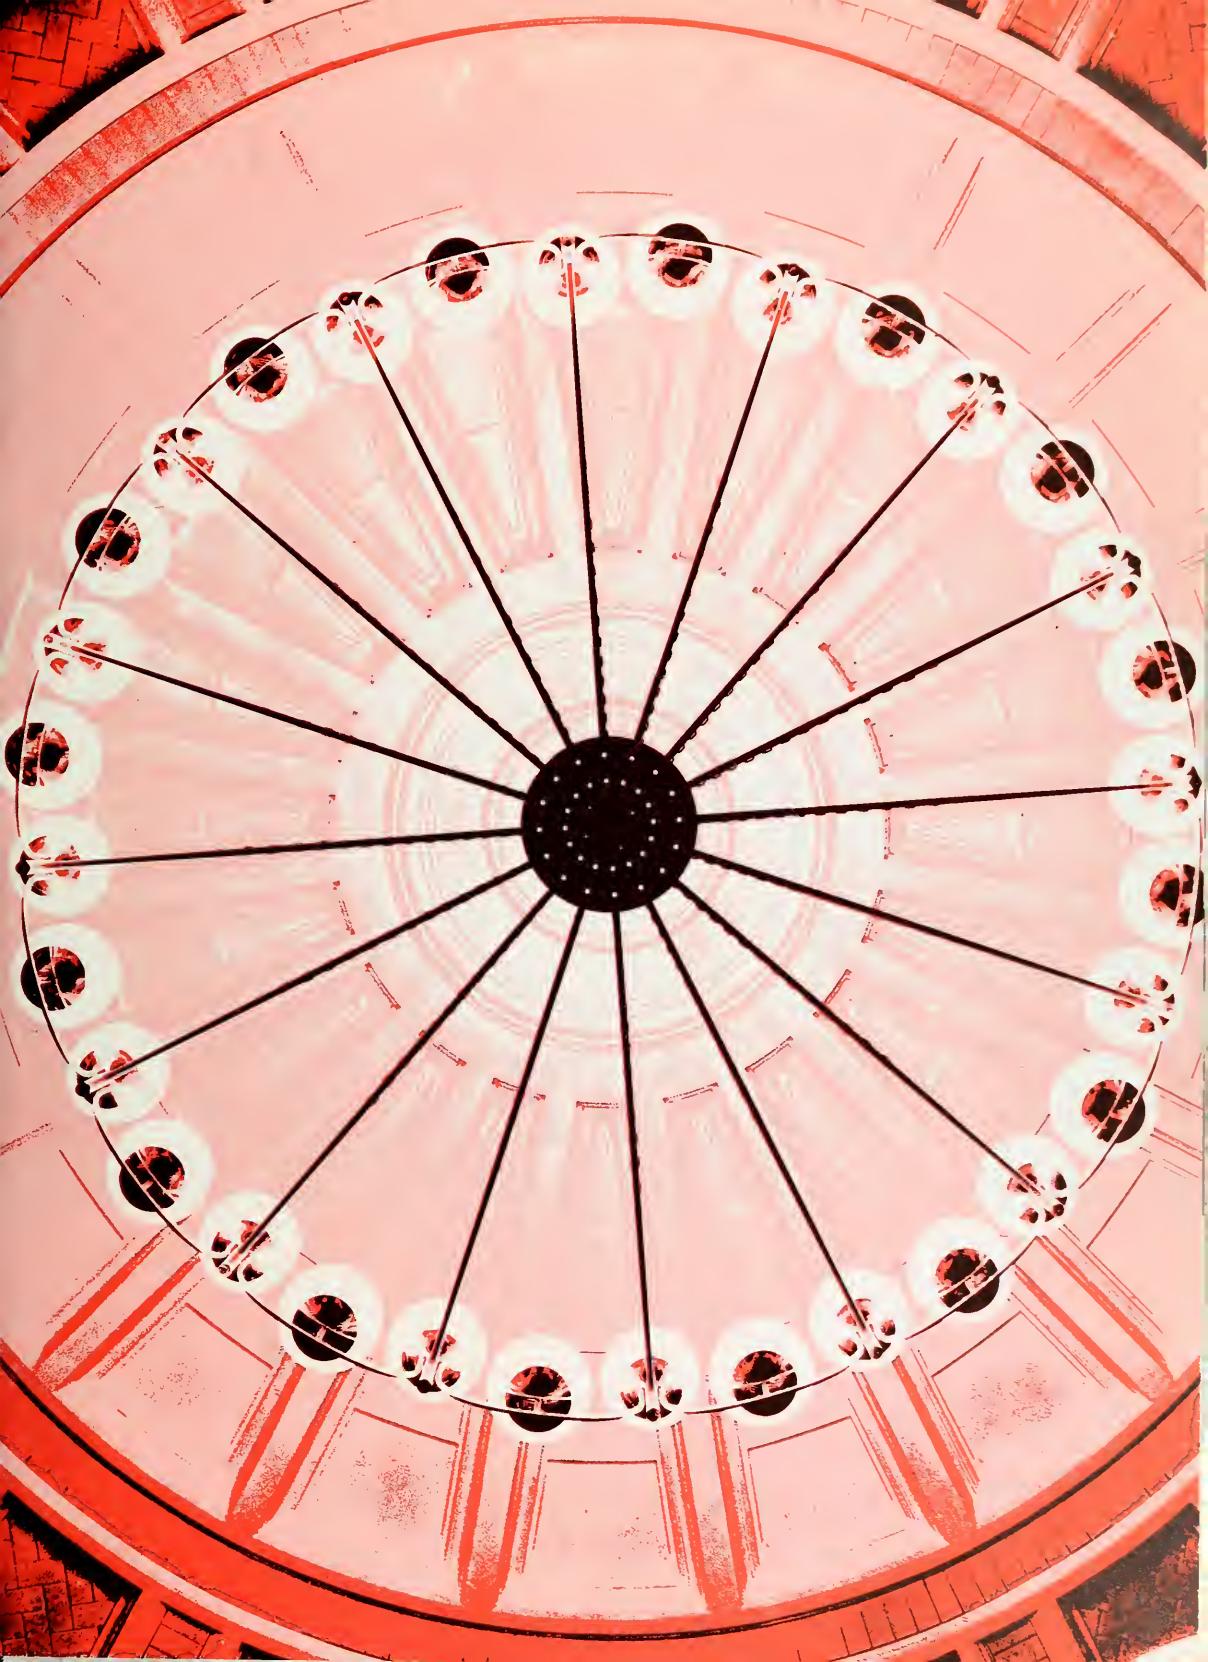

During the first days of school these girls find the lawn and weather permit studying and relaxation from classes and the crowded cafeteria.

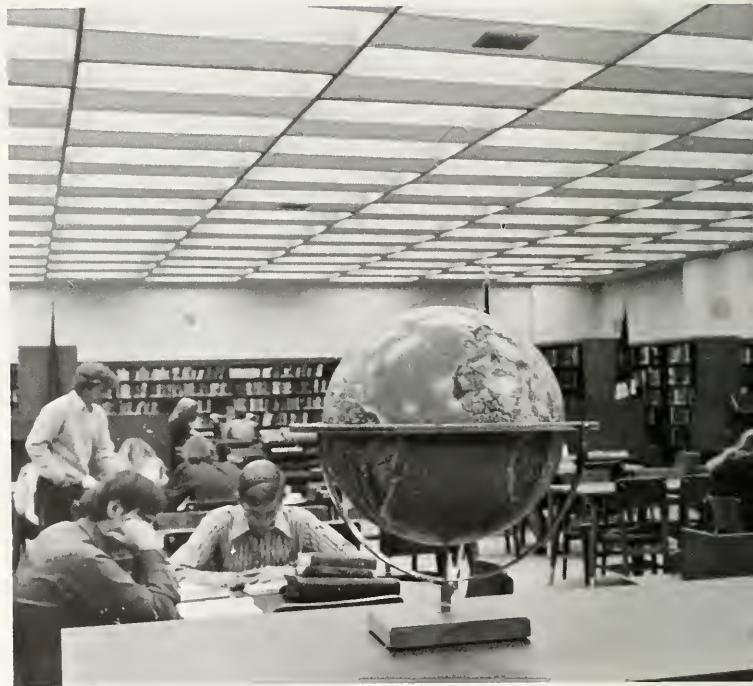

Jack Woodruff seems to be astonished as Rosie Regedanz shows her meek affection.

The Library is proved to be of more value than just for studying and reading, as Senior Dan Warrick sleeps off the drudgery of classes during his study period.

Tradition and transition,
the path of youth goes on / Academics

Sophomore Spanish Student Michael Sue Hayes practices speaking in the language lab.

The advanced French class, taught by Mrs. Ramona Ransburg, studies the geography of France, as well as the language. The language lab was used to improve speaking.

"Hail Caesar!" is the cry of students in Mr. Ward Beckley's third-year Latin class. George Wagner raises his sword while Elaine Carlson offers grapes to her classmates.

Foreign Language/

Latin students converse;
French features new films.

Understanding spoken and written language and being able to converse with a native speaker are the goals set by the Foreign Languages Department. Spanish, French, and German, concentrate on listening, speaking, reading, and writing; while Latin, a classical language, is based on learning about the literature and general culture of ancient Rome. This year, however, Mr. Ward Beckley, Latin teacher, experimented by using more conversation in the classroom.

Other changes in the foreign language department include the use of a new text for second year French students, along with new films featuring different characters than have been used in previous years. The textbook and films are centered on the home and every day life of a French family.

Native speaker and Spanish teacher Mr. Caesar de la Guardia confers with Foreign Language Department Head Mr. Paul Lemke.

These students are on their way to a Spanish restaurant as members of an advanced Spanish class taught by Mr. Caesar de la Gardia. They enjoyed the foreign food.

Learning phonetics by pronouncing German sounds helps Junior Beth Thomas in third-year German, taught by Mr. Tom Dohrmann.

Small group discussions were features of a new world used by Mr. Timothy Russell to teach U. S. history to juniors.

Don J. Schmidt, Republican second district councilman, speaks to members of Mr. Cleon Fleck's social studies classes.

Social Studies/ Team-teaching, outside speakers add interest to familiar courses

The aim of the Social Studies Department, according to Mr. Cleon Fleck, department head, is to stress problems related to past history and local affairs.

Changes in the department this year include a team-teaching method by Mr. Duane Brown and Mr. Timothy Russell, who present a lecture to a large group, then lead both large and small discussion groups.

Some sophomores and all juniors and seniors were involved in social studies classes. Required courses were U.S. History for all juniors and government and sociology or economics for seniors. Electives included world affairs, for seniors only. The world affairs class dealt with history as explained through the mass media.

Peoples and cultures since Man's beginning are studied in world history, open to all students. Here Mr. Charles Feller prepares to show a film strip to his class.

English/ Mr. Lewinski heads department; vocational classes take tours

Juniors Bob Krouse, Bill Stuckey, and Diane Rowald present a group discussion on modern English literature to Mrs. Donna McBane's English class.

English was more than book reports and grammar lessons. Students were encouraged to do individual work, using the library as a resource center. Vocational English classes instructed by Mr. John Heath took field trips to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, International Harvester, Ford Motor Co., General Electric, B. F. Goodrich, and WKJG T. V. station.

Mr. James Lewinski, the new department head, taught seminar classes. The juniors and seniors who chose this class shared their experiences in small personal groups. As Mr. Lewinski stated, "The goal of the English Department is to try to encourage people to think more clearly, read more intelligently, listen with more understanding, and experience better communication.

Sophomore Jeff Goshert found book reports burn time using the hunt and peck method.

Mr. James Lewinski, English Department Head, relates to English Seminar students.

Mr. James Lovell gives extra help to geometry students having trouble with a difficult problem. Other students, having already mastered the problems, work independently.

Mathematics, Science/ Individual study arrangement initiated by science program

The Math Department provides students with the opportunity to take five years of math. The fifth course, advanced mathematics, is taken in the senior year, along with trigonometry. Students taking advanced math did so on a self-study system.

College-bound students were encouraged to take four years of both math and science, while others were urged to take at least two years of each.

The science program has undergone vast changes in the past two years. Courses were handled on an alternating lecture and self-study basis, utilizing individual lab set-ups. The program was initiated to allow students to become self-reliant. It enabled those students who needed help to obtain it, while those who didn't had free time for individual study.

Advanced biology, a course studying chemical and biological relationships, was added to the science curriculum this year.

Mr. Charles Clark, Math Department head, gives answers to problems involving geometric series as his advanced algebra students grade their papers.

A delicate operation is the subject as these biology students dissect a frog. Frogs were one of many specimens used in dissecting.

Acceleration is the concern as these physics students conduct an experiment.

Juniors Patricia Chambers and Bob Zollars use a Bunsen Burner in experimental work in the chemistry lab.

Mr. Beryl Lewis exhibits binary compound formulas to his chemistry class.

Members of a stagecraft class taught by Mr. Douglas Stark familiarize themselves with the stage lights. The class learned how to achieve special effects.

B. J. Dorsett as Dorothy, Tim Angel as the Tin Man, and Kevin Ferguson as the Scarecrow, rehearse an act from the Wizard of Oz.

Dramatics and Speech/ Stagecraft stresses fundamentals; Speech teams attend tournaments

These students engage in vehement debate about significantly changing the jury system, which was the topic attacked by debate teams throughout the year.

Drama and speech classes, a part of the newly-formed fine arts block, provided students with an opportunity to broaden their cultural experiences.

Advanced drama students studied modern comedies and Shakespeare. Beginning students worked on individual scenes that they had written themselves. Getting acquainted with the stage was one of the most important steps taken by the stagecraft class.

Speech classes emphasized learning how to listen critically. A logical approach to problems was also stressed. The speech and debate teams broadened the students' experiences in these areas. The teams went to tournaments and workshops at cities around the state.

Mr. Stark helps students in his drama class to arrange their costumes. The drama department presented three major performances during the year.

Communication is the key of effective journalism. Beginning journalism students learned how to communicate by conducting interviews for news stories and by writing effective news. Speakers from the community and school were also interviewed by the class. They experienced the technical side of communication by putting together audio-visual tapes of events and tapes for radio. Many beginning journalism students contributed to The Northerner on an extra-curricular basis.

Advanced journalism students composed the Northerner and Legend staffs, each staff meeting in a daily class. They applied all the skills acquired in beginning journalism. To aid them, new phone and intercom systems and a renovated dark room for developing pictures have been installed.

Art/ Students show artistic interests in art media

Besides using design, drawing and painting, art students worked with many art media. Beginning students learned crafts; advanced students mastered various printing methods. Advanced courses offered weaving, stitchery, dyeing, poster work and lettering, lithography, silk screen printing, graphics, etching, pottery, and wood block printing.

Art students also decorated the cafeteria, halls, and library during the year; student exhibits appeared throughout the building. The art students decorated the Parkview Hospital children's ward for the Christmas and Easter holidays. To add even more variety to the art courses, field trips were planned at the Fort Wayne Art Institute and other exhibits.

Senior Pat Lockwood follows a pattern as he cuts a piece of copper in the process of making jewelry.

Lynn and Louise Crider use their talents as they design and print work of their choosing in Mr. Donald McClead's art class.

Cheryl Wilson and Sharon Koenig accompany the Troubads in an out-concert performance.

Marching Band forms the block "N" to play "Chief Mac" as Indian Kevin Furguson begins his traditional war dance. The band marched at all home football games.

Music Department/ Fine arts block develops a new schedule among talents

"Promises, Promises" chorus the Troubadors as they perform during American Education Week. Along with them at Southtown Mall were the Wildsiders.

Fine arts teachers began a schedule block involving music, dramatics, and speech. Classes in these areas met on a flexible basis, enabling students to participate in a variety of programs.

Troubadors and Orchestra joined the Marching Redskins at camp, broadening the scope of experiences available to campers. The band received a first division rating at the NISBOVA Marching Band Contest, held here at North. Wildsiders and Troubads observed American Education Week with performances at Southtown Mall.

The Musical "Oklahoma," with all Fine Arts students participating, was a highlight of a season which also included three concerts involving the major performing groups.

Senior Rick Sweeney is amused by the powerful voice of Dave Lehrman, who tries to prove to be high spirited at a home football game.

Mr. Barry Ashton, new Music Department head, reveals his conducting qualities as the band marches on to entertain football fans.

Industrial Arts/ Girls become acquainted with male vocational fundamentals

Senior Randy Harding and Junior Kerry Hall take a reading on their Ohmmeters to determine the resistance value of resistors, a primary element in electronics.

"Our purpose is to give the kids experience in all electronics and power so they can choose what vocational training they would like to enter," said Mr. Clive Wert, industrial arts teacher.

In the power mechanics section students worked on such projects as building electrical motors and generators, as well as giving engine tuneups and rebuilding automobile engines.

Students in the electronics divisions used equipment valued at several thousand dollars in their work concerning radio and television repairs.

The woodcrafts section has the largest enrollment in the industrial arts program. North Siders made many projects such as bookcases, stools, stands, and small boxes and displayed them in a large showcase near the woodcrafts room.

Cherry Sexton breaks the male-female barrier as she works intently in drawing class.

A brilliant flash of light is shown as a metal shop student skillfully handles an arc welder in doing a required assignment. Welding was one of several crafts offered in metals.

A sewing student in home ec concentrates on putting in a straight seam for a dress she makes as one of her choice requirements.

After final touches, Sophomore Kim Pennell models a skirt that she made in sewing class.

Home Economics/

Girls receive marital advice as marriage counselors speak

Miss Martha Moore directs the discussion of marital difficulties in her family relations class.

"In sewing, the girls have quite a bit of freedom as far as what they can make," stated Mrs. Edna Crocker, Home Economics Department head. Students could make a variety of projects, according to their capability. Sewing was but one area of home economics, which also included wardrobe planning, cooking, and discussions about marriage.

In family relations, a class taught by Miss Martha Moore, students learned to balance check books and plan budgets. The class had several special speakers, such as marriage counselors, who attempted to give them an idea of the type of marital problems they might expect.

Physical Education/

Co-ed gym classes combine sophomores in volleyball

The physical education department, headed by Miss Anne Donnelly, took on a different swing this year with the addition of the $2,600 universal gym.

The Key Club, Athletic Department and the Fort Wayne Community Schools all contributed money to the project.

For the first time in North Side's history, the pool was opened to co-ed swim classes. There were also co-ed volleyball teams and square dancing.

Boys' classes did body building activities such as flag football, basketball, running, wrestling and gymnastics.

The girls ran track, played tennis, volleyball, field hockey, soccer, golf and participated in gymnastics as well as using the universal gym.

Girls played basketball on the first day that their new gym was ready.

Boys and girls participated in co-ed volleyball for the first time as an innovation in sophomore physical education.

Sophomore physical education students test their muscles in the new universal gym. The instruments are used by gym classes and athletic teams.

Tennis fundamentals must be learned before proceeding to a game situation. These girls absorb the basics of the game from Miss Anne Donnelly, instructor.

Three opponents at the scene put conditioning drills to use, struggling and panting as they try to cross the finish line.

Business/ Clerical education teaches student requirements for office employment

"Business covers a large area", said Mrs. Wilma Ashe, service center head. There were accounting courses, business law, typing, consumer education, clerical practice, shorthand, and distributive education.

The business classes prepared students to use business machines, such as printing calculators, and ten key adding machines.

Practice in keeping records of personal and business incomes was provided in bookkeeping classes.

In typing students learned the fundamentals of touch typing with emphasis on speed and accuracy.

In shorthand girls learned how to take dictation with speed and accuracy in an unfamiliar type of writing.

Advanced shorthand students strive for speed and accuracy, as they learn usage of abbreviations and the basic forms of special shorthand word ending.

Sophomore Beth Holderman works with a calculator as she does assigned exercise in clerical practice, a course concentrating on familiarization of business machines.

Beginning typing student Don Fremion improves his rhythm on the home row.

Attending her cash register, Charlene Peach accepts a cover charge from a customer as she works at the Heritage House restaurant as a part of her cooperative education course.

Distributive Education/ Cooperative programs give members on-the-job training

Mr. Richard Irving demonstrates the important elements of business partnership to his distributive education class.

In several vocational education programs school, business, industry, and employers trained students for future occupations. The programs which were offered included Industrial Cooperative Training (I. C. T.), Cooperative Office Education (C. O. E.), and Distributive Education (D. E.).

I.C.T. taught juniors and seniors a trade or technical job. As seniors the student was given a job to develop his skill.

C.O.E. was designed for seniors with a career in office work in mind. Both on-the-job training and classroom study were provided.

D.E. also involves on-the-job experience and classroom study to help develop skills in selling, marketing, advertising merchandising, management, and other careers related to the distribution of goods and service.

Tradition and transition,
the path of youth goes on /Organizations

Student Council/

Membership has fewer openings
due to lack of participation

Junior representative Mike Martone states his opinions on various matters that have been brought up during a student council meeting.

Membership in Student Council was limited this year to five members per class other than officers. Student Council President Larry Strong said reasons for the change stemmed from last year's lack of organization and participation.

Four committees led the way for accomplishments throughout the year. The ways and means committee worked on money-making projects and the budget. Problems outside the school and in communication with other city schools were dealt with by the inter-communications committee. Problems within the school were discussed by members of the problems committee. Spirit committee encouraged spirit within the school.

Mr. James Lewinski and Mrs. Donna McBane advised the students in their projects.

Student involvement is the subject, as Student Council officers Larry Strong, and Jim Wehrenberg analyze the problem to find an answer.

Student Council president Larry Strong and Les Seiling talk with Mayor Ivan Lebamoff during his visit to North.

Student Council representatives appear before the student body at the senior class officer nomination assembly.

Key Club/ Young men perform community service

Key Club, sponsored by Mr. Mark Tippie and Mr. Larry Bott, participated in several projects to benefit North Side and the Fort Wayne community. These included selling popcorn for the Kiwanis Club, collecting money for the Karen Barnes Fund, and helping the Christmas Bureau. Club members also put out the school directory, the Key, ushered and parked cars at basketball games and other school events, donated $1,000 toward the universal weight machine, and made a major donation in memory of Joseph Hagadorn for the new tennis courts.

During the summer, Key Club President Mark Chappuis and Vice-President Andy Meehan attended the National Key Club Convention in Anaheim, California. Other officers of the club included, Tom Benecke, treasurer; Mark Adams, secretary; and Mike Leach, sergeant at arms.

Two separate clubs existed this year in Z-Club. Through the year they entertained at retirement homes, supplied a Thanksgiving meal for a family, supplied carnations for the basketball sectionals, and sponsored a car wash. The girls also participated in Christmas caroling and the selling of Valentines and spirit suckers.

Z-Club is a high school branch of Zonta International, a classified Women's Service Club, sponsored by Mrs. Sherrylene Gerber. Approximately 60 girls met every Thursday.

Each club had their own officers. Club one officers were President Wendy Robertson, Vice-President Renee Druhot, Secretary Linda Pickering, Treasurer Sarah Mensch.

Club two officers were President Kathy Goshert, Secretary Becky Davis, Treasurer Debbie Ormes.

Audio-Visual/ A-V members assist faculty; plan field trips, film Redskins

Under the leadership of first-year club sponsor Mr. Ted Crum, Audio-Visual Club planned several activities, such as field trips to photo labs and television stations. Another activity was a party in January with members of the other organizations in the Media Center.

The five club members chose Jerome Ridley for their president. Joe Rogosky and Rick Nichols served as Vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

The A-V Club also took video tapes of extra-curricular activities for teachers' use.

Andy Federspiel and Rick Nichols listen attentively to Senator Birch Bayh. A.V. members video-taped many assemblies.

Distributive Education provided a combination of study at school and an on-the-job training program outside of school. Several local businesses cooperated. Students learned how to become effective salesmen. DECA members investigated and questioned business practices and problems. DECA students received grades from their managers at their jobs as well as from Mr. Richard Irving, the instructor of this fund-raising organization.

In the fall DECA sponsored "Fashion Fantasia," a fashion show. DECA members and their families modeled clothes from businesses participating in the distributive education program.

National Forensic League was an organization for any student interested in participating in speech or debate. A member could win awards based on participation and success. Twenty five points earned the student degree of merit, 75 points a degree of honor, 150 points a degree of excellence, 250 a degree of distinction, and 500 a double ruby.

The speech and debate members earned their points by participating in meets throughout Indiana. Their season was climaxed in the spring with a state tournament. Speech sectionals were at Heritage High School, Regionals in Elkhart, and State finals at Peru. Debate sectionals occurred in January at Elmhurst.

A speech member was able to choose among nine different categories: Extemporaneous, impromptu, dramatic interpretation, humorous interpretation, oratorical declamation, original oratory, discussion, radio and poetry reading.

Speech student John Schomburg searches for material concerning his contest work.

Helicon/

Members discuss literary styles

Juniors Elaine Carlson, Linda Kruse, Barb Hoppel, and Patti Kipling kick off the events of Helicon Club as they enjoy food and drink at the annual potluck.

Helicon, advised by Mrs. Kathleen Neuhaus, and Mr. Robert Pugh was open to juniors and seniors maintaining at least a B + average during the second semester. The members chose to work on creative writing, poetry poster designing and miscellaneous current forms of literature at their monthly meetings.

Helicon members also took part in the annual fall potluck and the Farewell Banquet for seniors. During the Christmas season, Helicon members partied with the elderly at the Allen County Retirement Home. The party, featuring a play, was very inspiring, according to Mrs. Neuhaus.

Helicon was led by Sue Hoffman, president; Steve Mays, vice-president; Patti Hein, secretary; and Bev Smith, treasurer.

Trick or treating for UNICEF, a fall picnic, a Christmas party, and a spring banquet highlighted the year for members of the Junior Classical League. The Roman Banquet, an annual tradition, was enjoyed by everyone, with dress for the event being togas.

JCL was open to those students taking Latin, those who had already taken Latin, or those intending to take Latin.

The forty six members met to share common interests and fun. Meetings were scheduled by popular demand. The sponsor of the club was Mr. Ward Beckley.

MLC/ Students share foreign interests, broaden cultural knowledge

After an MLC meeting, juniors Rhonda Fox, Cheryl Wilson, and Patti Delobbe enjoy talk of a trip to Europe.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Cesar de la Guardia, members of Modern Language Club met irregularly to share common interests. The club planned special activities, such as a picnic and parties.

The purpose of MLC was to broaden the student's cultural knowledge of foreign countries. Membership was open to any student studying French, Spanish, or German.

The club got a late start, not organizing until January. Plans included election of officers and determination of further plans.

Chess Club/

Members compete against teams of other schools

South Side, Bishop Luers, and New Haven were the opponents faced by the Chess Club.

The finale of the year came in April. Beginning with four district meets, one of which was at North Side, the tourney continued through the state tournament at Indianapolis. Club members practiced every Thursday afternoon.

Under the direction of Mr. Alvin Harris, members competed against teammates to develop a win-loss rank. The team member that had the most wins was placed in number one position and played the number one player on the other team.

Library Club/ Student librarians learn basics and earn credits

Learning basic library skills and earning credits was the main purpose of the Library Club.

The club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Carolyn Zehner for the first time, had a membership of 16 interested students. Many used their free periods to aid in operating the library.

The Library Club also had a social side and planned a joint skating party with the Audio-Visual club in January and a field trip later on in the year.

Mrs. Zehner noted that there were no officers chosen for the club because of its social nature.

The typical jobs of most student library assistants is checking out books to help students complete their assignments.

Staff attempts to relate paper to student interests

The work of the Northerner was done on a week to week basis, with the editors proofreading and checking layouts while the reporters and ad staff worked on advance issues.

This year the Northerner had many changes, both in material and style. The forty-five staff members tried to use more interesting material, including student involvement stories, opinion polls, and pro and con editorials. Several features, such as Que Tal (what's happening?), were directed toward black students.

The Northerner has been published weekly since the fall of 1927, and along with the Legend, has been supported entirely by subscriptions and advertising.

Both the newspaper and yearbook staffs enjoyed the use of the new facilities in the journalism room.

1500, Quill and Scroll/ Journalists attend banquet, receive awards for outstanding work on Northerner and Legend

1500 Club included journalism students who had accumulated 1500 points, earned for various work done on either the Northerner or the Legend staffs.

Upon compiling 1500 points, a student received a bronze pin, along with his membership in the club. Higher awards were a silver pin for 3,000 points, a gold pin for 5,000 points, and a letter for 7,500 points. The highest honor was a gold jeweled pin, awarded when a student reached 10,000 points.

The club organized a Christmas party, banquet, and a picnic in the spring for publications staff.

Quill and Scroll was an honorary journalism organization, open to seniors only. Students were nominated to the club by publications adviser Miss Norma Thiele. After Miss Thiele's nomination, the student's application was considered by the national organization. Upon acceptance into the International Quill and Scroll Society, the student received a membership insignia and the Quill and Scroll magazine.

Office Volunteers/ Students donate free periods; run errands, deliver messages

A number of dynamic students devoted their spare time to different types of office work. These students worked in the offices of Dr. Bill Anthis, Mr. Max Updike, the attendance office, and the guidance office. Much of their time was spent running all types of errands and collecting attendance cards. Other odd jobs involved filing, alphabetizing, answering the phone, and typing. When students found a few minutes free they usually used it as study time. Any student with a free period was permitted to help in the office; however, no class credit was given. Mrs. Delores Klocke, guidance coordinator, said, "the services of these students are greatly appreciated throughout the school."

Office workers Jana Dougherty and Cheryl Mullins, juniors, search the Industrial Arts Corridor for an elusive student in order to deliver a note to him.

Cooperative Office Education was a vocational course offered to senior girls. Government, Sociology, English, and a COE training course filled the first three periods of the students' day.

COE prepared the girls for their jobs by teaching them the operation of various business machines and proper business procedures.

After morning classroom training students work approximately four hours each afternoon.

Mrs. Candace Miller, instructor, interviewed girls for possible jobs. COE members were paid by their employers and received credit for their classes.

Senior COE members Patty Vice and Joyce Keever perform their duties at Allied Insurance Agencies. The girls did typing and various other secretarial chores.

A new club, the Student Involvement Committee, (SIC), was formed during the close of the 1970-71 school year. SIC was officially ordained club during the 1971-72 school year and became one of North's newest organizations. The purpose of the club is, as its name suggests, to institute a total involvement plan for all students at North.

One of the added features at North Side during the 1971-72 school year was initiation of the Afro-American Club.

The club, led by advisors Mr. Robert Rice, Mr. Tom Bullock, Mr. Phillip Stubblefield, and Mr. Alvin Harris, began by holding its meetings during the second half of the third period.

Grand National Champions was the title awarded to the varsity cheerleading squad, consisting of Janine Burke, Carla Ehler, Beth Fremion, Bernice Nelson, Pat Pion, Pat Shade, Cheryl Wilson, and Terri Zimmerman. The girls earned the honor by competing at the regional level last summer at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, then going on to take national honors. Beth Fremion received first place trophies at both regional and national competitions, while Patti Pion was awarded a third place in the regional contest.

In addition to their cheering duties, the girls spent Friday mornings working with girls' cheerblock, teaching them new cheers and chants.

Reserve cheerleaders were given the opportunity to cheer full games, rather than just quarters. Cheerleading sponsor Miss Anne Donnelly felt this better prepared them for future varsity experience.

Reserve Redskins attempt a new mount at the cheerleading clinic sponsored by North. The clinic was attended by city and area schools.

Girls' cheerblock included the varsity and reserve cheerleaders, and Miss Anne Donnelly, sponsor, who is seated in the lower left.

Senior girls' cheerblock members Amy Hughes, Kay McKinnis, and Ruth Westerman have a few chuckles during pre-game chants.

The girls' cheerblock was organized to promote spirit throughout the school during the basketball season.

The block's money-raising project for the year was a Christmas candle sale. Each girl who sold $50 worth of candles received bus fare on the bus for their road trip. Other girls received various stuffed animals as awards for selling specified amounts of candles.

Every Friday morning at 7:15 the girls gathered in the gym to learn new cheers, chants, and songs taught by the varsity cheerleaders.

Miss Anne Donnelly, physical education teacher, sponsored the group.

Block participants were required to be present at all the city and tourney games. They also had a road trip to Goshen High School.

Serving as officers were Bev Christman, president; Mary Ann Lochner, vice president; and Pam Kirkpatrick, secretary-treasurer.

Ripplettes/ Female swimmers entertain spectators

Ripplettes displayed their swimming ability at a water show in May. After months of work the girls prepared a show open to all interested spectators. Basic techniques were stressed, then more intricate acrobatic stunts were developed. After the girls mastered the movements, they put them to music and emphasized gracefulness. Only one dive is required to be used for getting in the water.

Under the direction of Mrs. Zola Noble, Ripplettes practiced on Monday and Wednesday nights after school. The swimmers were inconvenienced by the lack of a pool for the first portion of the year. Reconstruction caused this problem which hindered their practice.

"I feel honored to be a member of National Thespians Club and I am excited about the coming activities," said senior member Debbie Holom.

The National Thespians is strictly an honorary dramatic club. Under the new direction of Mr. Douglas Stark members were chosen differently than previous years. Participation in class, plays, and dramatic events were the basis for appointment.

Among the activities Thespians participated in were the plays "The Wizard of Oz" and "Oklahoma!" There was also an annual banquet in honor of the members.

Concert, Varsity Bands/

Leading the North Side High School Marching Redskin Band were Rick Ludwig (left) and Mark Albright.

Smaller and more frequent concerts highlighted the Music Department's performing season. Department head Mr. Barry Ashton said that in recent years concerts had grown to marathon length and it was felt shorter performances were needed.

Bands performing at the concerts included varsity band, composed mainly of sophomores, concert band, which consisted of upper-classmen and a few sophomores, percussion ensemble, made up of those percussionists who did not participate in varsity or concert bands, and a new group, wind ensemble.

Wind ensemble was formed to give students a chance to play music more difficult than that attempted by concert band. Auditions were held to obtain the top musicians to participate in wind ensemble. Mr. Ashton hoped to use the wind ensemble for trips and out-concerts.

Concert Band members are (Front Row) Sue Snyder, Jane Snyder, Nanette Sievers, Nancy Hileman, Jill Hinkle, Sharon Hoagland, Lea Powers, Vicki Brown, Sue Smith, Mike Tunnell. Mr. Ashton turns his back to insure impartiality as he conducts auditions for orchestra. Students were seated in an order determined by their playing proficiency.

The usual concert circuit was interrupted for concert orchestra by such special events as clinics and special performances by selected members of the orchestra.

Orchestra planned to attend a workshop at the University of Evansville last spring. They were to play some pieces prepared at North and learn some new ones at the clinic.

Try-outs were held to choose students to play for the school musical, "Oklahoma!" These students practiced during the three-period Fine Arts block to prepare for the play.

A ten-member string ensemble practiced before school to prepare to attend the NISBOVA contest. String ensemble members were chosen on the basis of playing ability and willingness to participate, according to Mr. Ashton.

Concerts at Southtown Mall during American Education Week, Christmas caroling at the Lincoln National Bank and television performances marked some of the experiences shared by members of Troubadours. Troubs were composed of the top singers at North, and performed at concerts at school, as well as special performances outside school. Troubs also attended music camp for the first time this year, along with orchestra and band.

A'Cappella was a larger group than Troubs and exhibited their skills at major school concerts. Both Troubs and A'Cappella were directed by Mr. John Hill.

Training choir was directed by Mr. Phillip Stubblefield and afforded sophomores and others wishing to prepare for A'Cappella a chance to develop their voices.

Included among their experiences was a concert at Southtown Mall during American Education Week and a performance for Senator Birch Bayh. Wildsiders also participated in several clinics and contests, including NISBOVA, the Notre Dame Jazz Festival, and the Elmhurst Jazz Festival.

Wildsiders played a wide variety of jazz music and featured soloists on many pieces. Mr. Barry Ashton provided direction. Rehearsal Stage Band, under the direction of Mr. Neal Graham, enabled interested students to learn fundamentals of playing jazz. Rehearsal band practiced weekly.

The Red, led by Coach Duane Brown and assistants Joe DiPietro, Tom Dohrmann and Donald Hunter, compiled a 4-5 season mark. The team competed in the newly created north division. Student leaders of the squad were co-captains Tyrone Hines and Mark Adams.

The Red and White, as last year, started out the season strong, but injuries took their toll. The team doctor counted 18 major injuries in this unusual season.

Storming back from a one point defeat to north division champion Bishop Dwenger, the Gridskins won three straight from new schools Northrop and Wayne and old nemesis Goshen. With a sparkling 3-1 mark, the team went to defend the Totem Pole trophy against South Side, but was defeated.

Another defeat followed, this time to south division runner-up Central Catholic. North tasted victory for the last time in the season over Concordia. Losses to Elmhurst and Snider hindered thoughts of a winning season.

Harriers begin slow season with unusually small turnout

First-year Coach Keith Fisher guided the 1971 edition of Redskin harriers to a 4-8-1 season. An unusually small group turned out for the team, as Coach Fisher was greeted by an eight member squad in his initial year of cross-country.

The season started slowly with a tie with La Porte. Things picked up during the second week of competition as North, led by junior Mark Maxwell, bested three of six opponents and won fourth-place honors in the Goshen Invitational.

Three straight losses followed, but Domeland broke the streak and finished the season with a 14-point victory over Central Catholic.

The team finished tenth of 22 schools in sectional finals, eliminating them from the state tourney.

Although the cross-country men compiled a losing city series record, they did well against out-of-town foes. They lost to only one of four teams, recording a 2-1-1 mark.

Coach Don Hunter gives grappler Gary Jackson some valuable advice during a time-out in the New Haven Sectionals. Jackson ended his season with a 16-5 record.

Senior John Nelson became the first grappler in North's history to make it to the state final. John finished with a fine 18-4-1 record.

Senior Steve Pulver of the 126-pound class goes for a pin over an unlucky opponent. Pulver finished the season with a winning record.

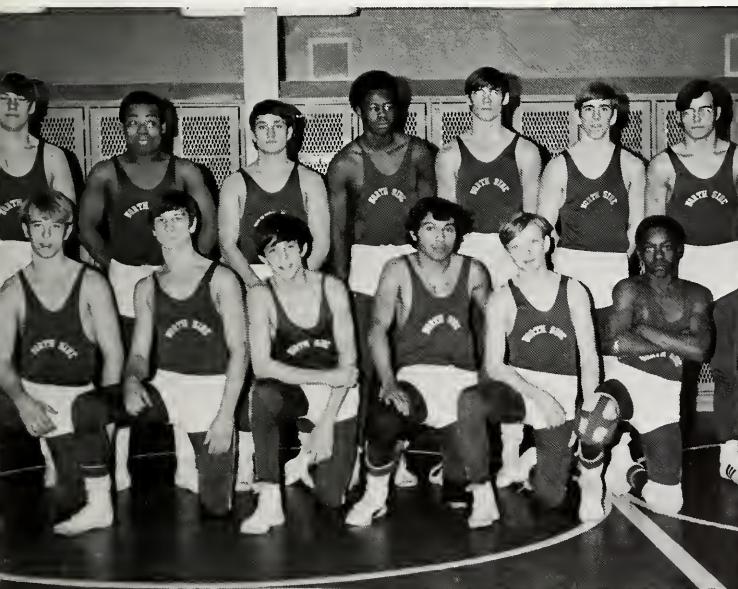

North's wrestling squad compiled a 5-7 regular season record and nabbed runnerup honors in the Goshen Invitational tourney.

Other highlights of the season included placing fourth in city series competition, fifth in the New Haven Invitational, seventh in the IHSAA sectional, and ninth in the regional.

The squad was led in scoring by senior John Nelson, who finished with an 18-4-1 mark and traveled all the way to the state finals, capturing sectional and regional titles along the way.

The reserve squad also had a fair season as they captured championship honors in their own reserve tournament, edging New Haven by one point.

Tennis/ Inexperienced team compiles 5-8 season record; Coach Henderson loses two lettermen to graduation Tennis at Domeland during the 1972 season experienced a downswing as the Red racquetmen complied a 5-8 record.

North finished seventh in the annual ISHAA sectional tourney and sixth in the city series competition. According to Coach Henderson, things look bright for the 1972 squad season as the squad will only lose two seniors to graduation, Mark Stine and Tony Valentine.

Domelander Steve Mays leans backs as he prepares to serve in a home meet against Northrop. The 'Skins lost that one by one point to the Bruins, 4-3.

Glen Nevogt, North's number three man, undercuts a return serve. The 'Skins finished with 5-8 record.

Baseball/ Seven lettermen return; Coach Russell builds squad around strong mound staff

The pitcher plays an important role on any baseball team. These pitchers are shown warming up for practice.

North moved into its second year of varsity baseball, under supervision of Coach Timothy Russell.

The 1972 squad opened its season during mid-April, with a strong nucleus of seven lettermen. The 'Skins also increased the regular season schedule from 13 games to 22 games and the state tournament.

Last year's squad, the first ever for North, finished with a 6-7 regular season record.

North lost to the Concordia Cadets in the first round of the New Haven Sectional tourney.

Varsity meets tough foes; captures city crown with unbeaten record

Pat Manes, senior guard, dribbles downcourt while John Ellis, senior forward, struggles for position.

Success was synonymous with the game of basketball during the 1971-72 season as coach By Hey and his Redskins won the city championship with an unbeaten city series record.

The Redskins, who finished with a 15-5 record played some of the top competition in the state. They lost to top-ranked Michigan City, South Bend Riley and Kokomo, also in the elite.

The holiday tourney jinx continued its hold over the Skins as they were upset in the first round by Snider but bounced back for consolation honors.

Senior Ron Barnes broke the school regular season scoring record and the city scoring championship with 428 points.

A new dimension was added when North played new school Northrop for the first time. They inaugurated playing for a traveling trophy the "North Pole," captured this year by North.

Dave Barnett takes the ball downcourt in an encounter with Snider at the Coliseum.

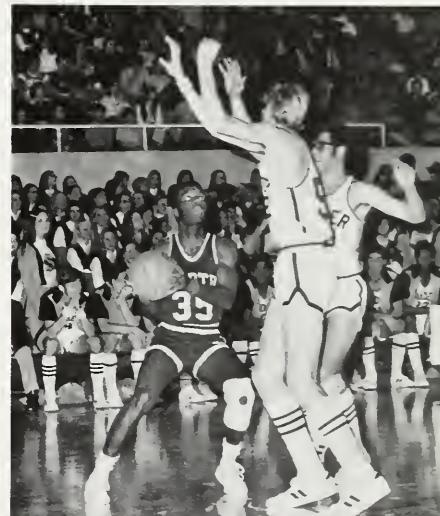

Senior Gary Gray seems to be in control as he drives past a Kokomo Haworth Huskie to score.

Senior John Ellis takes a jump shot over Snider's Andy Repogle. North won this important city series contest by a 63-53 score.

Cagers charge to Senior Todd Habegger, All-City Center, brings the ball down after a rebound in the Sectional opener against Northrop. The Skins stopped the Bruins, 64-54.

The roof fell in on 12th-ranked Leo in Sectional One Finals, as the Skins won their fourth consecutive Sectional with a record breaking 85-73 victory.

It was no easy route to the championship game for the Redskins as North drew city-runnerup Northrop in the first round action. The Bruins fought a close battle before succumbing 64-54. Heritage stopped Concordia and met the 'Skins in the Semi-Final on Friday afternoon. The county runnerups almost upset the Red Cagers, but North held off a late rally by the Patriots for a 59-57 victory.

This set up the "dream game" between 12th-ranked ACAC champ Leo and city titlist North. North stopped the Lions for the right to go on to Regional where they were upset in the first round by the East Noble Knights, 78-69.

Defense played an important part in the semi-final contest with Heritage, as the Skins won 59-57. Junior guard By Choka intimidates a Patriot cager.

The Redskin Reserves compiled a 17-3 record, equaling the best record ever for a North Side junior varsity squad. Among their honors were winning the Garrett holiday reserve tournament and the mythical city championship. Coached by Mr. John Stauffer and Mr. Tim Russell, the Red and White lost only to Northrop, Kokomo, and New Haven, and included among their victories conquests of Michigan City, Kokomo Haworth, and Muncie South Side. The high point total for the year came against DeKalb. The Reserves ran up 65 points in that victory.

The Sophomore team finished its season with an 8 win 5 loss record by Mr. Tim Russell, but lost their first three games and came back to win their next six. High points were a 60-25 stomping of New Haven and a last second win over Snider. The low point of the season broke the win string, as the Belmont Braves upset the sophons on the Redskin floor.

North's Derek Thomas (53) goes up for a jump shot in the 95-51 victory over Central Catholic. The 'Skins were undefeated city champs.

Doug Longley, a starting forward for the Redskins, eyes the basket in a drive for two points.

Track/ 'Skins are in red during beginning of '72 season.

These Redskin thinlies are dressed in the traditional garb of warmup suits and extra clothing to keep them warm in the preseason practice months of January and February.

Junior Mark Maxwell comes around the final turn at a morning practice. Mark was North's ace this year in both the mile and the 880 runs.

Head Coach Tom Doerhmann is caught in a thoughtful mood while he watches his team practice early in the season.

Senior Chuck Davis leads the pack around the turn during an early morning practice in the gym. Chuck ran the two-mile during the season.

North's 1972 track squad began its season by practicing in the building during mid-January. The Red and White runners, stocked only with underclassmen, began the season with two losses, to Culver and Lawrence Central. The lack of depth and size was the 'Skins downfall in both meets. The team was defending a seventh place in the State Finals.

The Redskins were defending their seventh place in the Goshen Relays and fourth place finishes in the North Side Relays and the Fort Wayne Sectional compiled by the 1971 tracksters.

Number of teachers shrinks; many teachers instruct block programs; faculty sponsors outside activities; Dr. Anthis provides advice

Home Economics teacher Miss Martha Moore takes a seat at the cafeteria door to check passes and ensure that no non-students enter the building.

Seventy-two teachers made up the faculty for this year, as compared to 90 in the previous year. The two new high schools in Fort Wayne accounted for the rearrangement of many teachers. This made necessary larger classes. Many teachers felt that the formation of block schedules eased the situation. Faculty working in the block programs said they found them helpful in teaching large numbers of students.

Much of the faculty spent spare time with extracurricular activities. Many had coaching duties, while others sponsored clubs in their yearly activities.

Throughout the year Dr. Bill C. Anthis spent much of his time advising students and faculty.

In addition to the duties usually associated with their position, the janitors also accomplished such tasks as cleaning the stadium after football games and preparing the field beforehand.

As usual, the custodial staff worked both a day and a night shift.

A new feature initiated by the cafeteria workers was the speed line. This was an extra service line in the cafeteria in which students could purchase a quick lunch of a sandwich, cookies, and milk.

The ladies also prepared the usual plate lunch and again provided the a la carte line in which students could choose from a variety of foods.

To help with the supervision of the Cafeteria, several ladies worked as aides.

First year cross-country coach Keith Fisher presents Mark Maxwell with an award for his fine showing in that sport this year.

These juniors found the new seats in the auditorium very comfortable during assemblies. There were many convocations throughout the year on a variety of topics.

Mark Langmeyer comes to junior pre-registration day at school. He is given his schedule and is allowed to purchase other school supplies.

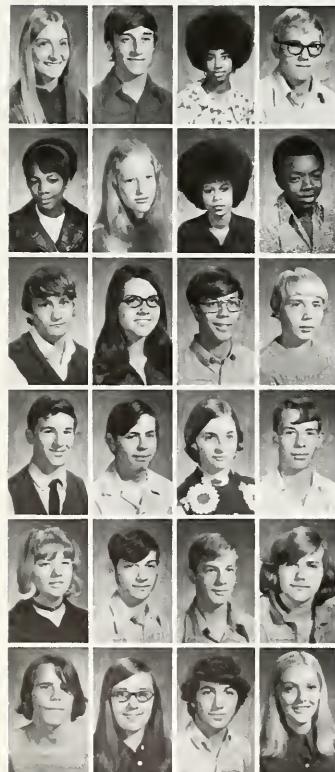

All junior girls interested in being in the Junior-Senior powder puff game met at Lakeside school on Saturdays or Sundays during the fall to practice. Here the girls are running through a practice play.

Charlie Davis was responsible throughout the year for filming many school activities. Charlie did this as a service to the school as well as his own personnel interest.

Vice-president Mike Morken, President Matt Schomburg, Secretary Pam McCleod, and Social Chairman Janet Seifert count sophomore funds.

This sophomore seems to be shooting the basketball in the wrong direction in the newly remodeled girls gymnasium. The basket she is actually aiming for is out of the picture.

Bonnie Gaunt presents members of the varsity football team small tokens of good luck.

Lee Ehinger and Scott Yingst examine a gutted washing machine after the fire department rescued it in the Home Ec. department.

Sophomores found high school enrolling different from junior high activities. All sophomores were required to pre-enroll the week before school started.

These sophomore girls stop in the main hall to admire the many candles displayed by the girls' cheerblock. These candles were sold and the profits were used to finance trips to away games.

New to Redskin country, Gary Grider returns his tray to the lunch room counter.

Seniors Mary Ann Lochner and Bev Christman won the girls' doubles tennis tournament with a 5-0 record.

Sophomore Gary Jones fights hard for a rebound in a game in boys' intramurals. The others participating are Tyrone Maywell, Cordell Gage, Curtis Perry, and Quincy Noel.

Intramurals/ Boys, girls use free time to develop physical fitness

Intramurals took on a different swing this year as the girls' intramurals became organized and the boys' intramurals were not officially organized.

Boys were allowed to play basketball during the third and fourth lunch periods in the girls' gym.

The girls' intramurals under the direction of Miss Anne Donnelly, competed in such activites as basketball, archery, field hockey, golf, gymnastics, track, swimming, volleyball and a girls' doubles tennis tournament.

One of the biggest and newest activities was the doubles tennis tourney. Some 19 teams consisting of 38 young women competed for the championship which was won by the only two seniors who participated, Bev Christman and Mary Ann Lochner. The two senior girls went undefeated with a 5-0 record for the title, while two sophomores won runnerup honors. The tournameant was held on the newly-built courts at North.

Cordell Gage, Ronnie Jones, Mike Tunnell, and Mike Blair prepare to snare the rebound if the basket is missed.

A lot of physical contact is encountered in this game in the girls' gym. These games decided who was who in intramural circles.

Two contestants work hard at getting the ball to one of their teammates.

Good for two? Chris McHenry shoots for a possible two points while being closely guarded by two opponents.

Blocked shot—get that ball! Several sophomore girls chase the basketball to regain possession for their team.

Seniors Rhonda Wraley and Eileen Benson work vigorously to complete layouts and typesheets in time for one of the many deadlines of the '72 edition of the Legend.

Junior Thea Baughman, organizations editor of the Legend works hard to produce copy. Thea also served as assistant business manager.

Business manager senior Steve Bogenschutz puzzles over an advertisement photo for the Legend while junior Thea Baughman and senior Eileen Benson write copy for the ad.

Legend/ Staff members work furiously to combat pressure of deadlines

The purpose of the 1972 Legend was to keep a record of the year and serve as a reference and memory book of the year. The staff attempted to use pictures and words in a blend to show the overall mood of the school year.

Students working on the yearbook solved publications and communications problems, while at the same time using their efforts to put out a book. The forty-fourth edition of the Legend had a staff of fourteen, in addition to an agent from every homeroom.

The planning of the yearbook actually began in January of last year. At this time, the editor-in-chief was chosen. During April and May, last year's staff planned the theme and general organization of this year's Legend. The style, divisions, and layout of the yearbook were planned at a summer workshop attended by the editor and assistant editor. The fall brought the sales campaign and initiation of new staffers. The first deadline fell in November, and from then on it was more deadlines and the checking of proofs until distribution in the spring.

As the year draws to a close, students prepare themselves for various goals. Although upon leaving they may follow separate paths, each has been affected in some way by his years at North. Their lives have been shaped by the traditions, and they have shaped the lives of those that follow through transitions.

We would like to extend our sincere thanks to Gunnar Veale for the use of his poetry in the Student Life section. We would also like to thank Larry Glaze of Paragon for his assistance in making the Legend possible, and Mr. Jack Bundy of S.K. Smith Company. We extend our deep thanks and appreciation to Miss Norma Thiele, who stood by with never-ending patience and confidence.

INDIANA AND MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY at 2101 Spy Run sponsors youth oriented programs in Fort Wayne, besides their complete electric service. INDIANA CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, 502 Commerce Building provides North Side students with new facilities in phase three of construction. The GOLDEN DOME HOME IMPROVEMENT CENTER at 2417 Spy Run carries all household hardware items from decor items to plumbing fixtures, and has glass and screen repair.

Indiana and Michigan Electric Company scholarship recipients, Nan Sievers and Sue Snyder are shown the I & M dispatching office by Mr. David R. Mills, regional chief dispatcher. Nan and Sue both received $1,500 scholarship.

Juniors Nancy McCue and Neal Inscoe supervise an Indiana Construction Company worker, who is laboring to finish the final phase of construction.

Junior Lynn Doughty and Senior Jerry Dahm can't decide what to buy, because of the large selection of merchandise at the Golden Dome hardware store.

Senior Sandy Eloranta is busy at work for the Colonial Mortgage Company. Sandy was employed at Colonial Mortgage through North's Cooperative Office Education program.

Mr. Paul Watters exhibits one of his many picture frames to Senior Court Carpenter. Mr. Watters is proud to announce the opening of his new studio at 3635 Lake Avenue.

COLONIAL MORTGAGE at 333 East Washington deals with mortgage and commercial loans, and also sells home, auto, life, and accident insurance. They also provide public service to Fort Wayne and North Side by employing Cooperative Office Education workers.
